

Plan the Work and Work the Plan

In February 2009 President Obama announced to a joint session of Congress his desire to work with them on a plan for healthcare reform. By July, a series of bills were approved by committees within the House of Representatives. This was done with very little input from Republican Congressmen, they chose not to participate even though Democrats gave them the opportunity. On the Senate side from June to September, the Senate Finance Committee held a series of 31 meetings to develop a healthcare reform bill. This group in particular, Democrats Max Baucus, Jeff Bingaman and Kent Conrad, along with Republicans Mike Enzi, Chuck Grassley and Olympia Snowe met for more than 60 hours. The principles that they discussed in conjunction with the other committees, became the foundation of the Senate healthcare reform bill.

Tomlinson plans to keep an eye on the growing government, calls the beverage tax "oppressive to the middle class" and opposes City Council's participation in the controversial Deferred Retirement Option Plan. He faulted Clarena Tolson, the new executive director of the Philadelphia Parking Authority, for creating a job for her daughter's roommate. The Republican is disturbed that the city has spent more than $50 million to modernize a former insurance company building at 46th and Market streets for the police department's new headquarters, only to scrap the move to that site.

New technologies are redefining how the construction industry operates. Traditional work flows in the office or work-site are being replaced by new ones. Pen and paper design has made way for Building Information Modelling software. Such technologies also allow for the reinvention of buildings and infrastructure, as well as an improved monitoring of infrastructure.

Such a plan would provide tax credits to college graduates who go into child care work. The result would actually increase the cost of care overall, rather than helping families afford child care. Instead of encouraging people with costly undergraduate educations to take jobs as daycare workers, why not take a hard look at the regulations daycares face and eliminate the ones that don't help anyone except the regulators?

A final piece of the agenda for working women is lowering child-care costs by providing state-sponsored subsidies to allow both parents to work outside the home. Child care costs have been soaring of late, and most families, particularly those with one partner who earns a lower wage, may find that the most sensible financial plan is for the lower-wage partner to stay home with children. Since the lower-wage earner is still more likely to be female, many women choose to stay home for economic reasons, even when they would rather be working.

Second, money. The amount of capital flowing from pockets to INSTITUTIONS that fight for progressive causes has hit record levels over only the past TWO DAYS. This isn't donating to some screaming liberal who has no plan for governing, it's money going to some of our oldest traditional institutions designed for advocacy of civil rights. Third, everyone is noticing a pattern. This author is clearly a really smart dude, but he doesn't see things many important and powerful people don't. Log onto twitter and you'll find literally hundreds of "establishment" liberal types who spend their time talking on CNN panels and directing powerful institutions talking about the pattern that's emerging. Powerful people are thoroughly aware of what we're facing, and they're mobilizing. We are going to win this.

Senator Paul, an ophthalmologist who plays a senator in Washington D.C., recently encouraged the House " Freedom Caucus " to torpedo any Obamacare "Repeal & Replace" plan which didn't meet their ideological ideal. Essentially: No federal subsidies; no government regulation or involvement (read: safeguards) in health and welfare insurance plans of the American People. Strictly for-profit "Free Market" forces?â€¦to determine coverage and premiums, without concern for critical human health needs, like " Essential Health Benefits " long mandated by federal legislation for retiree healthcare plans,â€¦, mandated for all plans under the ACA, to make them actual healthcare, instead of merely cheap, inadequate insurance scams.

A draft order of the priority action plan for 2017 and a priority action plan until 2020 were approved by the Cabinet of Ministers. The plans five main goals. They include building a competitive economy, increasing the life expectancy of Ukrainians, minimizing poverty, ensuring the rule of law, fighting corruption, and ensuring security and defense.

SB10 advances one of the original Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP) projects—the Everglades Agricultural Area (EAA) Reservoir. A critical part of the solution to a complex water quality problem, the EAA Reservoir will provide needed water storage, treatment and conveyance south of Lake Okeechobee to reduce harmful discharges to the estuaries and send clean water south to the Everglades and Florida Bay. Acquiring the land needed to accelerate the EAA Reservoir project to store and treat water is essential, as the discharge of toxic water from Lake Okeechobee impacts Florida's economy, health and environment.

Part 2 outlined an opportunity to learn, by writing fiction that tells a STORY. I released an open source framework for a story I plan to write with the help of a technique called crowdsourcing. I want to be open and transparent about my belief that this text performs dimensionality reduction, which is a fancy way of saying, "demolition," on a comprehensive reality distortion field that exists. War used to be "the go to method" for demolishing distortion fields, but thanks to the geometrically increasing computing power of the commodity microprocessor, which has been in force for the last few decades, we can now carry out the proposed reduction in the dimensionality of culture by simply mapping and reducing our view of the data set.

Consider developing a plan for training, supervision, and support for those who will be responsible for using the form to collect and manage data. Forms that promote consistent and comprehensive data collection provide a necessary foundation?â??but staff training on using the forms is critical to data quality.

By sharing our stories (and code of course), we hope to inspire other developers/techies in and out of Port Harcourt (and the world at large). We plan on taking this community further in future, we hope to start outsourcing members of PDC to work on Paid projects so as to expose them to team collaborations.

When Dr. King was assassinated in Memphis, he was in the middle of a plan to gather Americans who were struggling to get by for a march on Washington. The Poor People's Campaign would demand good-paying jobs that allowed them to raise their families in healthy and safe communities and quality education that opened opportunities for them to thrive. King's death was followed two months later by the assassination of former Attorney General and U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy, his fellow traveler who championed for a better life for people struggling to make ends meet. The Center for Community Change was created as the first project of the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Foundation, intended to carry on Kennedy's vision and values.
